

Resignation of Mitchell Asked At Labor Meet

By JACK WILLIAMS

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.—(CP)—The annual convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor last evening asked its executive committee to give further consideration to a resolution calling for the resignation of R. B. Mitchell, the committee has agreed to make no recommendation on the resolution.

Yesterday's convention sessions were devoted largely to discussion of resolutions.

Main resolution passed called for introduction of compulsory collective bargaining legislation and outlawing of company unions on lines similar to those in effect in the United States under the Wagner Act.

BEING CONSIDERED

Legislation to make collective bargaining between employers and employees compulsory is being considered by both the Dominion and the Ontario governments.

In another resolution the convention instructed its executive again to approach the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the National Catholic Syndicate with a view to joint action in labor confronting the Canadian labor movement. The resolution stated that "all conflicting policies or points of view in labor's struggle can be reconciled only by larger objectives of labor predominant."

Resolutions passed sought public ownership and control of national institutions, including cost of living bonus from income tax, cost of living bonus for soldiers' dependents, compulsory holidays.

Increased pay for members of the armed forces, protection under the unemployment insurance plan and free transportation for members of the armed forces.

A joint management conference for all Canadian automobile companies under the chairmanship of J. B. Berry, director-general of war vehicle production, formulation of a unified policy for the shipping industry, organization by the government of a fair employment committee, ending of discrimination against race, color and creed.

ASK RESIGNATION

The resolution calling for the resignation of R. B. Mitchell was submitted by the bolshemakers' and iron shipbuilders' Union of Victoria. In the preamble to the resolution it was stated that Mitchell had been a party to smashing the Kirkland Lake, a coal miners' strike, and a continuous operation plan. The resolution also asked for the resignation of Mitchell.

The committee's report on non-concurrence was reported by Elroy Robson, committee chairman. When opposition was voiced from the convention floor, Robert A. R. Mosher called on delegates to adopt a policy of eliminating personalities from their criticism of the government.

Several delegates criticized Mr. Mitchell and the convention finally agreed to return the resolution to the committee for further consideration.

OPINIONS DIFFER

Differences of opinion were expressed during the day's sessions over the appeal to the Ontario regional war committee, members of the United States Forces of America who are employees of the Algonquin Hotel, camp at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to a bare hourly rate of 35 cents.

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y., Sept. 17.—(BUP)—The war has changed our philosophy of living in many respects, and for those who have been privileged to visit some of our great military encampments, it has changed our conception of "big-time" sports.

For example, here at Mitchell Field—one of the world's great air bases—sports are being carried on with a magnitude and an intensity that we never have noted in major league training camps, college camps or city parks.

And the man responsible for this all-out sports program at Mitchell Field symbolizes the pace and the magnitude of its sports program. We refer to Major Louis J. Tschudi, one of the most popular officers on the post.

POPULAR AND PACKS GOODS
IT WAS our good fortune to note Major Tschudi's popularity and ability at first hand. We were sitting in the top room of the officers' club when Tschudi was called to the phone. He was but a captain then. He came back from the phone and said, "Wait here for me. Something very important has come up. But I'll be right back."

He was back in less than a half hour, and on the collar of his khaki shirt was a golden oak leaf, where the two bars of captaincy had been pinned when he left us.

Immediately the taproom became a swirl of congratulations, with officers rushing in from all sides to offer their well wishes. Major Tschudi accepted the congratulations and bought every man at the bar and in the club a drink, as is the custom.

HAS MAN-MADE JOB
MAJ. TSCHUDI, a medium-sized, wiry chap in his middle 30's, with a mop of brown hair and a fair skin, said, "I don't need to tell you this is the happiest day of my life. I was assistant football coach and head coach for basketball and track at the University of Dayton, O., from 1931 to 1939, but I never got a kick like this from anything my teams may have won—because this is the big time—the biggest time of all."

You can't quite appreciate Major Tschudi's elation unless you have been at this great base and seen the thousands and thousands of men who are training here. And he's the one man responsible for their physical fitness and their "toughness" when they leave for points unknown.

We asked Maj. Tschudi, "What goes on here?" Can you tell us how you harden these "tough" men? Is there any particular sport that you accentuate?"

ST. LOUIS STILL TWO GAMES UP

St. Louis Dodgers Keep Pace in White Chase

Sudden Collapse of Flatbushers Hard to Explain

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—It was a strange and baffling thing that happened today when the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers in the closing stages of the National League race.

They looked bewildered and the fight seemed to have gone out of them in the face of the Cardinals' remorseless drive.

The reason, the member of the Dodgers family explained weakly, is that it is somehow numbing to see a thing slip away day after day and feel powerless to prevent it.

"After a time you begin to feel dazed," he said. "I remember the night we tried our last western trip; he quivered. We had the petulant won. We even celebrated to the extent of a tub of beer on the train."

"Not that anybody over-drank. How is a whole team going to break training on one tub of beer?"

"I mean, that's the way flat world series, here we come! Sure, we were in a little hitting slump, but we had a seven and a half game lead over the Cardinals."

So what did a little loss count to? "I still can't believe it happened. Even when they cut us down to a three or four game lead, we kept thinking we were safe."

"We kept thinking we were safe. We didn't seem like when they hit us like this is happening every break goes against you. Did you see that strike called on Camilli Sunday with two on base?"

Things like that, he said, finally, that he didn't have more than an hour's sleep the previous night, and didn't anticipate any better luck on the night in question. He looked terrible.

All the Dodgers look more or less the same. Manager Leo Durocher is subdued and President Larry MacPhail virtually has conceded the season to the Cardinals.

After the two games Cincinnati won at Ebbets Field last Sunday, Secretary John McDonald said, "I'm awfully sorry, but he believed that had done it."

Facing a Military Secret

By WHITNEY MARTIN

BROOKLYN, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers, standing idly by for two days as St. Louis Cardinals

boosted their National League lead to two games, today returned to action Wednesday to ease their sense of frustration at the expense of the hapless Pittsburgh Pirates.

Warmed up by a slight pre-game riot, Leo Durocher's team blasted out 13 hits and a 103 victory to remain two games out of first place.

The pre-game scramble, during which the Dodgers players warmed into the box seats to get in their share of a battle between swarms and a group of spectators, seemed to be just the tonic the Brooklynies needed.

They still were stalling when Dick Gurnick served up the first pitch for the Blue Four innings, but Camilli's 23rd home run in the first frame, and thereafter it was a rout.

Wyatt kept the Blue Four pretty well under control. Every Dodger hit at least once. Dick Walker, back in the lineup after a benching because of a hitting slump, got four hits, and Camilli sandwiched in two singles between his first-inning home run and another in the eighth, his 24th, in two abounds.

Wyatt practically blew over the Pirates the first time in the sixth, allowing only two hits, one scratch. In the sixth, he struck six and Dixie Walker's error on Ray Kohn's hit brought the Pirates two runs, but the Dodgers already had six. The Reds picked another in the eighth, but in consecutive hits, a situation which called for a hurried huddle at the mound, but Wyatt tightened up and coasted into his 10th victory.

Dodgers Win But Saints Do Likewise

By WHITNEY MARTIN

BROOKLYN, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers, standing idly by for two days as St. Louis Cardinals

boosted their National League lead to two games, today returned to action Wednesday to ease their sense of frustration at the expense of the hapless Pittsburgh Pirates.

Warmed up by a slight pre-game riot, Leo Durocher's team blasted out 13 hits and a 103 victory to remain two games out of first place.

The pre-game scramble, during which the Dodgers players warmed into the box seats to get in their share of a battle between swarms and a group of spectators, seemed to be just the tonic the Brooklynies needed.

They still were stalling when Dick Gurnick served up the first pitch for the Blue Four innings, but Camilli's 23rd home run in the first frame, and thereafter it was a rout.

Wyatt kept the Blue Four pretty well under control. Every Dodger hit at least once. Dick Walker, back in the lineup after a benching because of a hitting slump, got four hits, and Camilli sandwiched in two singles between his first-inning home run and another in the eighth, his 24th, in two abounds.

Maybe Coach Too Modest

Bob Fritz Doing Good Job With Airmen at Winnipeg

By JOHN WALSH

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 17.—(BUP)—Bob Fritz is a master of understatement. That's our honest to goodness opinion.

Well, the other day Bob was in one of those moods. He was working like a Trojan knocking his air force team into shape in preparation for the opening of the Winnipeg rugby football league Tuesday night. And he just wasn't satisfied with his line.

In fact he was so dissatisfied that he told all and sundry that his forward set-up was his weak point. Tuesday night he proved himself wrong—but he's glad of it.

The airman met Winnipeg Bombers on the field in the initial tilt of the newly formed league. And when the game was over Fritz and his boys had knocked off the hapless Bombers by a score of 6-0.

So far as were concerned Fritz can say what he likes about his team. For our part they are perfect and for further proof you can ask the Bombers.

FAIR BARN FOOTBALL
A pretty fat sized crowd watched the opening tilt at Osborne stadium and despite the fact that the league is rubbing for the dis-banded western interprovincial league they saw a pretty fair barn of football.

True there were lots of fumbles, and lots of miscues. But what the boys lacked in general efficiency they more than made up for by their ferocity.

All indication point to a fairly successful season. The Bombers lack lots of muck and potential scoring punch but they seemed as sure as a hinge.

Their blitzing down in the stretches, fumbled in the clutches and short kicked when they were in danger. In fact it could be said that they were not exactly up to par.

STRONG BACKFIELD
Potentially the Bombers field the best back with a backfield composed of Ches McCance, Jim Froubier, Harry Johnston, Ken Preston and Nate Shore. They pack the explosive power of a large size team and they have an armored front line that rates as one to none on paper.

Experts didn't give the airman a chance out there with the Bombers. First the Fritz didn't have a comparable backfield and by their own admission they didn't rate with the Bomber front line.

But experts have been known to second guess their own time and again. It's still a bit early in the season.

Admittedly it's still a bit early in the season.

Manville Girls Play Here Friday

At Kingsway Park, Friday night at 8:30 p.m., the Manville Bluebirds and the Edmonton Pats will play an exhibition game. This is the game named out earlier this week.

Coach Bert Williams' ex pitcher has victories over the Walk-Rites, Kalamand and the Pats. The Bluebird infield is also good.

A special feature of this quintette on the bases, is that they all use an underhand throw which gives speed and accuracy in every pitch. It is really something to see.

Arrivos to Play Dodgers Tonight

Sixth game of the senior baseball playoffs between Arrivos and Dodgers is billed for Renfrew Park tonight at 8:30.

The teams now stand all-square in the best-of-seven series, each club having won twice. One game was tied.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

TORONTO, Sept. 17.—(CP)—An Australian aviator, W. L. (for something) Webster, turned out last week for practice with the R.C.A.F. football league. He had been a star in the Australian league.

He was a light heavyweight boxer. He was stocky and tough, and perhaps because of that his approach to the game was unusual.

First, he thought all the armor players were nonsense. He didn't think the game was that rough. He also thought the way to go through a line was head-up, see-where-you're-going.

He scored the necessary 100 yards in a game by running around an enemy tackle. The alternative was simple: just run right over him.

He revised his ideas about armor after his first tough scrimmage about the same time he decided to save one's own head for the war effort instead of having it knocked off going through a line.

He started to turn it in when he played. And a little later he found out about tacklers. They really were worth slugging. About that point, the Australian was being quite a football player.

Tuesday night, about a week after his introduction to football, W. L. Webster wore heavy padding, kept his head down when he hit the line, treated tacklers like social outcasts, and scored the only touchdown at C.A.F. beat Winnipeg Bombers 14-0 in their first game of the 1942 Canadian football season.

Incidentally—LAC Dave Castilloux gave the boys a little lesson in sportsmanship the other night in Montreal.

He refused to be introduced to a fight crowd at an outdoor boxing house where lightweight Johnny Greco, also of Montreal, wasn't given the same invitation.

Greco, who has been boxing since he was 15, is a likely contender in the United States. He is likely to meet Dave Castilloux in a lightweight crown.

If there is a shortage of football players in the country, at least there is a shortage of basketball players. F.O. Lew Hayman had 100 candidates attend the first work-out of his Toronto air force team.

Coach Fred Vesale combined over $5 at Hamilton Wiscarty first practice. Plans are being made for two Royal Air Force soccer teams from Saskatchewan air stations to visit the Pacific coast for exhibitions.

Blood Donors' Clinic Opening Is Postponed

Indefinite postponement, due to technical difficulties, of the opening of the blood donor clinic was announced Thursday, after a meeting of the Edmonton branch of the Red Cross Society, in the Civic Block, Wednesday.

Lt.-Col. D. H. Tomlinson, provincial commissioner of the Red Cross, attended the meeting, and complimented the branch on the quality of its work. He also invited friends of the organization to attend a luncheon to be held in Calgary, Sept. 25.

Vicount Bennett will speak at this meeting about the Red Cross activities overseas. More than 1,000,000 people have been sent from Canada to the front lines in the last few years in British Columbia. Robert Muir, secretary-manager of the branch, reported that 65 overseas shipments have been sent from here this year. The shipments contained 6862 pairs of socks, 2349 children's articles, 3182 men's civilian sweaters, 20 quilts and 20 pairs of socks, in addition to two shipments of donated surgical instruments.

FAMILIES AIDED
 A report from the welfare department revealed that assistance had been given to 26 families, including 18 articles of clothing and bedding.

Recently the branch instituted inquiries about 23 boys believed missing in German and Italian prison camps. Four of who are now prisoners of war. Letters were read from boys in German and Italian prison camps, expressing their appreciation for the help they were receiving.

Mrs. E. Marshall, superintendent of the Junior Red Cross groups in the city, stated that these organizations have resumed activities in the schools.

The opening of a work depot in the Empire room of the Hudson's Bay Company, was announced by Mr. R. Procter, head of the women's division, who explained that the depot was being organized here in making surgical dressings for the front lines. Mrs. H. E. and Mrs. C. McManus.

McCauley Concert
 The McCauley Concert Group has added $25 to the Queen's Canadian Fund. Twenty dollars of this amount is from the quilt account and the remainder is from proceeds of a concert given last week at the Municipal auditorium.

This brings the total fund to $17,658.61.

Smoking in Bed Is Cause of Fire
 A smouldering blaze believed caused by a cigarette in bed destroyed a mattress and bedding of a room at the International hotel Wednesday night.

The room, occupied by A. E. Andrews, Calgary, was slightly damaged by smoke.

Firemen from Hall No. 2 responded and extinguished the blaze with the use of chemicals.

Former City Man Here on Leave
 Mr. Neil Primrose, administrative officer at R.C.A.F. headquarters, Ottawa, is spending a furlough in Edmonton.

Formerly he practiced law in Vegreville.

A graduate of the University of Alberta, he is the son of the late Col. P. C. H. Primrose, former member of the House of Commons, and famed widely as a police magistrate of the Edmonton city police court.

When Guilty Plea Frees Four
 Here's one for the books. A man who first pleaded guilty to manslaughter and then changed his plea to "not guilty" and so doing was instrumental in not only freeing himself but also three other men who were charged with the same offence, in police court Wednesday.

Charged With Theft
 The incident developed when a sailor lad and his three companions were charged with the theft of gasoline from a private pump.

The sailor lad pleaded guilty while the other three were arraigned for hearing after pleas of "not guilty."

The crown prosecutor, in a desperate effort to establish identity of the three other accused, called the sailor as a crown witness.

Defense counsel objected on the grounds that the sailor was one of the four jointly charged with the same offence.

A verbal battle ensued. The magistrate then called for a brief argument.

After the arguments, the defence counsel changed the sailor's plea to "not guilty" and the magistrate then called the crown prosecutor's contention and his star witness was left to boot.

Without the services of the "crown" witness, the crown prosecutor could not establish identity, and the case was dismissed, giving freedom to all four.

There you have it. Figure it out for yourselves. The wheel of justice turned once more—but they turned in reverse.

Saw Town By-Election Advance Poll Is Now Open

Advance poll for the Sept. 22 provincial by-election opened in the returning officer's headquarters, 916 Jasper Avenue, at 2 p.m. Thursday and will remain open Friday and Saturday between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m., and 7 and 10 p.m.

Only those persons qualified to vote and who take an affidavit that they will be out of the city on business on election day will be permitted to vote at the advance poll.

H. H. Crawford, returning officer, reiterated his request Thursday that all electors voting at the advance poll bring the enumerators' slips with them when they come to cast ballots. These slips were left with electors by enumerators when they made the house-to-house canvass to compile the voters' list.

"If the advance poll voters bring these slips it makes it easier for us to check their names on the voters' list," Mr. Crawford said.

Approximately 200 names have been added to the voters' list during the revision which has been proceeding during the past few days, it was reported.

By DOROTHY DIX:

Wife Fears Husband Will Be Untrue Again

A Cure For This Is To Do Something That Demands All Her Attention; Don't Let Ghost of Old Love Stalk You

DEAR MISS DIX: Is there any way of overcoming an obsession? For three years my husband has had an affair with another woman. I broke it up by applying for a divorce. When he thought he was going to lose the children and he gave up the woman and settled down to become an ideal husband. But I can't forget. I am in terror of his going back to her. I never see the woman without shivering with fear that there will be a letter to him from her, calling him back. I never look out the window without dreading that I may see her walking up to our door. I even dream about her and in my nightmares she is trying to break up our home. My husband never speaks of her, never goes near her, so far as I know, he seems happy and contented and devoted to me. We had money. We belonged to different races and had different habits and tastes, but instead of our marriage being a failure, it has been unusually successful.

What can I do to free myself of this black shadow that hangs over my life? Don't tell me to keep busy. I work from 3:30 in the morning to 11 or 12 at night. A mother with three children hasn't much leisure for life thoughts.

WORRIED WIFE.
Answer: But she has. She has all the time there is for musing because the trouble with housewives is that while it employs their hands it leaves their mind free to brood over any unpleasant thing that has happened in their life and to magnify it until you make a mountain out of a molehill. You don't have to concentrate on making beds and washing dishes and flouting the baby's bottom and patching Bobby's pants and darning your husband's socks; you have the same things over so many times that you do them automatically.

THINK ENOUGH TO WORRY.
So while you are going through your daily routine you can worry over why your husband always has to pick out a good-looking young girl for a stenographer instead of a homely middle-aged woman, or why Mrs. Jones didn't invite you to her party, or what would happen if John should lose his job—or any of the other million things people worry over who have all opportunity to do a good, consistent job of housework. Maybe you have noticed how much more cheerful, easy-going and young-looking the women who work outside are than the women who work in the home.

The reason is that a woman with a job has to concentrate on her work. If she doesn't want to get fired, she has to keep her mind on her typing or her bookkeeping, or whatever it is she is doing. She can't indulge herself in day-dreaming and wondering how a woman who is so much more cheerful and young-looking than she is manages to work in the home.

So your remedy, lady, is to get out of your rut or else you will end up in a nice padded cell. You are past the place where you can help yourself; you must have outside assistance. The only way you can get this is by doing something new, so interesting and difficult that you will have to give it all your attention and won't have a minute to think of anything else.

Luxurious Drapes to Make Yourself

Swags, Cascades Easy to Sew

If you have yearned to treat your living room to really stunning draperies, this lovely triple-swag style is your chance.

For you can make it all yourself, inexpensively. The swags are easy, so are the cascades which smartly finish the corners.

You might make the main swag of luscious printed, striped or checked fabric, and the side draperies, and the smaller swags of brocade.

The main swag should cut nearly twice as deep as it will be when folded and several inches wider than the window.

Cut the smaller one on the same plan, allowing of course for the smaller space to be covered. To shape swags, start deep, then curve the lower edges as the diagram shows.

Brown fringe makes a smart trimming. Stitch it on, then fold and tack swags to valance.

Now—the graceful cascades. For each, take a 25-in. strip of fabric, pin off corner and pleat. Stitch—bale—love!

For details of making curtains, see our 3-page booklet, "Give Dramatic Direction to Your Swags, Cascades, Side Draperies, for Stunning Effect in Place with Curtains, and Formal Draperies, Valances."

Get 15c in coins for your copy of "New Ideas in Making Curtains and Draperies to the Modern Style."

Bulletin House, 60 Front Street West, Toronto, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Points for Parents

Mother at bedtime: "I'll help you put out your clothes for morning until you have learned to do it for yourself."

Mother in the morning: "It's morning school time." Daughter: "What dress shall I wear? I can't find what I like to do it for myself."

Sometimes a very simple device is able to change a hectic getting-off-to-school into a serene procedure.

Mittens and Socks Matched In Knitting

By ALICE BROOKS

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERED

Mealtimes should be the pleasantest of a mother's day. It's delightful to relax before a table containing appealing foods designed to satisfy one's hunger and give one pop and vigor.

This is a time to enjoy one's family and chat amiably about the activities of interest to them all. Without effort no one can imagine that family meals will be as enjoyable as they are when visitors are present. Too often the mother and father are at the table when the children are nailed to their places at the table, to eat in some good sound school.

"I saw you hitting Grayson this morning," she said to Jimmy, pointedly. "You didn't know I was watching. But I do. You think it is nice for a big boy to hit such a helpless little fellow?"

Jimmy has been ashamed all morning of his thoughtless act, now to find it dragged out for the whole family to comment upon is enough to spoil his appetite even for the food he likes.

"I think you're mean," he says to his mother, hilly.

"None of that, young man," his father retorts acidly. "You talk reverently to your mother, or I'll take a hand to you."

Jimmy, shriveling, knowing he is not to be taken in, says to his mother, "I'm not." He is not, but his father is against him, and he is not to be taken in.

Father and mother talk to each other desultorily. Then Marjorie pokes an inquisitive and appreciative finger into the soft mold of her father's cheek.

"Keep your fingers out of your father's cheek," she says sharply, having just been told by father that his fingers were not to be used for anything but to eat with.

The meal goes on in a tense, nervous, disagreeable atmosphere, and everyone, most of all the children, are glad when it is over.

I have recently of parents who, having noted the profitless conversation at the family table, determined to do something about it.

They then chose a topic of something of interest to all, either a painting, a book, a movie, a current event, or a story, and discussed it throughout the meal. The benefits from this plan are many and noticeable. Quite incidental to their greater enjoyment of the meal the children are accumulating a wealth of interesting information and knowledge.

Through every issue of your body that are usually passed through which you receive the impressions of pain and distress when the normal functions are interfered with.

The acuteness of the excitement of these nerves varies in different parts of the organism, being very strong in some regions and almost imperceptible in others. The skin will react to the most delicate touch while the internal organs do not register sensations as readily.

You should not, ordinarily, be conscious of internal disturbances so when you get inside information, it usually means inside inflammation. If you are conscious that you can feel your heart acting up, you may rest assured there is a derangement of function to which you should give the necessary attention.

Pain comes to you in every case as a friend to warn you of impending danger. To stop the pain by repeated use of a pain-killer is as foolish as to throw away the red light at a break in the rails on a railroad.

There is a vast difference between curing a pain and removing the real cause of it. Generally pains do not continue long as Nerve is at all times trying to correct the cause. If you are living a haphazard life when such warning comes to you, do not fall in head, study out what error you have committed in breaking natural laws.

Go back over the details of your last few meals. What mistakes have you made in selecting and combining your foods? Are you exercising enough to use up a reasonable amount of food? Be honest with yourself if you wish to be helped in overcoming painful symptoms.

Though some diseases do not give much warning before a fatal termination, you can, at least, always find the causes of those disturbances which show themselves by symptoms. Periodical examinations by your physician will discover other predisposing conditions leading to hidden disorders, which when discovered, can be eradicated by more hygienic habits.

While it is permissible to relieve pain temporarily, either through the use of a pain-killer or through the application of heat in some form, remember that such temporary relief does not remove the underlying causes of the pain. The results are only temporary—not permanent.

I have recently of parents who, having noted the profitless conversation at the family table, determined to do something about it.

They then chose a topic of something of interest to all, either a painting, a book, a movie, a current event, or a story, and discussed it throughout the meal. The benefits from this plan are many and noticeable. Quite incidental to their greater enjoyment of the meal the children are accumulating a wealth of interesting information and knowledge.

SPORTING BLOOD

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

CHAPTER IX

After Strickland Ballard had left, Hunter sat on his cot waiting someone to laugh, though it was much nearer a crying match. Ballard had come with a vague hope of fanning the crime on Hunter. His real reason was to shield poor Junior. Because Hunter's motive all along had been pretty much the same thing, he might as well not quite get together. The trouble was Hunter Dent was as if he could get away with anything. He was innocent to save another who seemed guilty.

Whatever Ballard's call it took him hastily away. When Anderson came for Hunter to talk over the telephone, he laughed heartily. "If I have any more high-and-mighty guests like you, Dent, I am to install a private phone. There you are."

"Hello," Hunter said. "This is Tracy Hanning. I can't be with you until 10 o'clock. Will that be time enough?" "Okay. We'll make it time enough." "Don't talk, don't say a word, until I've got over everything with you." He hung up. Hunter returned to his cell. Anderson, obligingly brought the morning paper. Aside from the war news, the most interesting thing to Hunter was the story of the local mystery. The girl Sarah Kitter, had been kidnapped. The police were watching her every moment to discover her escort the night of the murder. The long-expected break in the ordinance scandal came. The elder Gibbard had been arrested in the charge of fraud in the contracts for building the great plant, and...

"This brings up young Temple. He is the lad whose face is going to be red before all this is over," Hunter concluded. Hunter got a pretty good night's sleep that night, and the next morning at 10 o'clock he faced Judge Ekhart and heard his bond fixed at $10,000. Hanning took Hunter back to jail. Hunter didn't feel so good. Nor did his feelings look up as he saw the day pass. Always an active outdoor man, this enforced idleness was killing him. He slept fitfully, dreaming of Junior Ballard's dying, of the lost money and questions about why the money was moving, and where, tormented by half dreams. The next morning Anderson came to his door. "You're out," the sheriff announced. He let Bella Ballard in. "Rattle the door when you want to leave."

Laff-A-Day

"Thanks, Joe. I'd forgotten I lent you this buck. That was on May 9, 1941, wasn't it?"

C'mous World —By William Ferguson

Miss Ballard," he said when he left.

The season of rain and gloom had passed. Red was in autumn colors—brown, dark reds and with her hair and bright color she was so pretty that it hurt Hunter. He tried to think of her against the date's jealousy, against her father's expressed fear that Hunter might get into the family. He wished he could feel as sanguine. She sat on the other end of the cot.

"They think Junior has a chance now. The doctors won't allow him to speak, to see any of us. But Dr. Ferguson thinks if no complications set in he will get well."

Hunter said warmly, "Well, I'm proud to hear that, Red. I really am."

She looked around and grinned. "I like your apartment, Hunter."

"No wisecracks, please. Or I'll have Anderson look you up with me."

"I think I would like that."

"Like grief? I'd tear these jail walls down to escape anything like that."

"Love that would burst through jail walls and jump heavy bond over me. If you really would like to get out of here, at least temporarily, I bet it could be arranged."

No more of that. No more of the fruits of such wickedness, and I'm fed up on the flavor."

She said, with mock sadness. "I don't like the Ballard family any more, do you, Hunter?"

"I mean the sporting instinct which is such a marked characteristic of ours."

"—bluntly, I don't care for it at all."

She got up with a laugh, did a little skip and swing, and stopped before the window. "Delicious view you have."

"See," Hunter grumbled, running his hands through his hair.

She came and looked down at him, and teased his hair. "So you don't like it?"

"I didn't say that. I don't like this so-called sporting blood you've got so much of, do you, Hunter?"
